*Zaccheus, Zaccheus, what do you see
Way up there in the sycamore tree?
Jesus Christ is in our town
But we can't see here on the ground*

This game is based on the story of Zaccheus in the Gospel of Luke Chapter 19, Verses 1-10.

If you don't have a bible, visit <http://bible.oremus.org/?passage=luke+19> and click 'Show passage'

Before you start

You need 2 to 4 players.

You will need a button or marker and a die.

Cut out the yellow and pink tokens.

Put the tokens on the gameboard on the coloured squares, face down.

How to Play

Choose someone to start.

Roll the die and move the number of spaces shown. The play goes in turns to the left.

If you land on blue, take no action.

If you land on red/pink, take a pink token, read it out, and keep it.

If you land on yellow, take a yellow token, read it out, and keep it.

When the player who reaches 'The End' green space first, he or she calls out

"Zaccheus, Zaccheus, what do you see?
Way up there in the sycamore tree?"

Then everyone calls out

"Zaccheus, Zaccheus, get down from the tree!
Jesus Christ is coming for tea!"

Everyone then counts the number of points on all their pink tokens. The person with the lowest number wins the game! Then everyone gives their yellow tokens to the person with the highest score.

Is there a paradox here? Why do you think the winner is the one with the lowest number of pink scores? You could look up another story to help with this. Read Matthew Chapter 19 verses 16–30. If you don't have a bible, visit <http://bible.oremus.org/> You will need to type in the reference as "Matthew 19:16-30"
